Covad Wireless Powers Office 2.0 Conference

Providing 30 Mbps broadband service as official event sponsor

San Jose, Calif. (September 6, 2007) – Covad Wireless, a subsidiary of Covad Communications Group, Inc. (AMEX: DVW), a leading national provider of integrated voice and data communications, is providing high-capacity fixed broadband wireless service and serving as an official sponsor for the Office 2.0 Conference, taking place September 5-7, 2007 in San Francisco, California.

“Covad is excited to support the organizers and attendees of the Office 2.0 Conference by delivering 30 megabits of Internet connectivity,” said Eric Weiss, Covad chief marketing officer and a speaker at today’s session. “More and more businesses are moving to Web-based 2.0 applications that require a high-bandwidth connection. Covad is able to meet that demand with high-speed broadband services that offers higher bandwidth capabilities and much shorter installation cycles than traditional telecommunications providers.”

The Office 2.0 Conference is a collective experiment organized every year in San Francisco, and aimed at discovering the future of online productivity & collaboration. It is a unique gathering of visionaries, thought leaders, and customers using innovative online services for getting things done at the office, at home, and on the go. This year, every attendee to the Office 2.0 Conference (press excluded) will receive an iPhone. Gathering over 500 people using the exact same mobile device will allow the event organizers to learn about user interfaces, workflows, and usage patterns for mobile online applications. The organizers’ goal is to turn the Office 2.0 Conference into one of the largest ever attempted experiments on mobile productivity and collaboration.

“We are very proud to have Covad as a sponsor for this year’s event,” said Ismael Ghalimi, lead organizer of the Office 2.0 Conference. “In our search for a high-quality network for this year’s event, we found that no company could match Covad’s ability to provide high-bandwidth wireless service and provision it in a matter of days.”

Covad is an expert in providing high quality, high-speed Internet access for special events such as the Office 2.0 Conference. The company’s wireless solutions range from T1 replacement to high-capacity service with data speeds of up to 100 megabits per second (Mbps), enabling live video web-casting, company demonstrations, remote Internet and email access, file transfers and live data feeds. Covad Wireless serves over 4,000 small and medium-sized businesses in the San Francisco Bay Area, Greater Los Angeles area, Chicago and Las Vegas. For more
